

Hallo, my name is Max and I study Tourism Development Strategies (MA).

I decided to study at the University of Applied Science, Stralsund because...

the university has a pleasant size, which enables interactive learning. On campus, you can find everything a student is looking for but it's not too big to get lost. The lecturers have a lot of international experience and are able to pass this on to the students. There is a family-like atmosphere and the lecturers' doors are always open. As you walk from building to building, you keep running into familiar students and professors. You just know and greet each other.

I study Tourism Development Strategies (TDS) because...

Travelling is a passion to me. I understood that early while I was away from home. After I graduated from my bachelor's in tourism management, it was clear to me, that I want to deepen the skills and knowledge I have picked up so far. The TDS master's course encourages to think further and aims to develop tourism. Additionally, the students come from several foreign countries, so their stories and experiences are wonderful contributions to the lectures.

Ich study this course because...

it has an international orientation. The classes come with modern subjects, which are often accompanied by international examples. In general, there are many exiting modules to choose from, so it's sometimes hard to choose, but I think it's great to be able to set individual emphases.

I especially like...

that tourism is not only taught here in Stralsund, but also lived. The island of Rügen is just on your doorstep and can easily be reached by bike. You can go over for a sunset picnic and see the silhouette of the city. Moreover, the oldtown is a beautiful place where you occasionally bump into fellow students and relationships are built easily. The harbor is a real highlight – if you fancy a sailing trip, a walk along the water or just sit down for a drink on the harbor edge.

After my graduation...

I would like to put what I have learnt into practice. I want to motivate people to go travelling and share my passion with them. In what form particular ... I'll remain flexible for now.
